1. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. Upon review of the cited portions of the specification, it appears that the smart card stores a digital certificate which is used to gain access to the profile information stored on the database rather than storing the profile on the smart card as claimed.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-6, 9-16, 19, 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Herz, patent number 6,029,195, in view of Dean et al., patent number 6,055,512.

Herz teaches a method for creating a user network interface comprising the steps of: allowing a user to aggregate profile information into sets including at least one of home persona and work persona and each persona references needed profiles (col. 5, lines 20-40, col. 7, lines 1-10, col. 10, lines 45-65, col. 11, line 65 - col. 12, line 60, col. 90, lines 1-35), obtaining user profile information (see at least col. 4, lines 48-67); gathering information regarding product characteristics (see at least col. 4, line 48 - col. 5, line 20, col. 6, lines 16-66); correlating responses (see at least col. 4, line 48 - col. 5, line 20, col. 6, lines 16-66, col. 7, lines 5 - 50); performing a statistical analysis of responses (see at least col. 4, line 60 - col. 5, line 20, fig. 12); and presenting the statistical analysis in a personalized report based on the profile information (see at least col. 4, line 48 - col. 5, line 20, col. 6, lines 16-66, col. 7, lines 5-50 at least ranking, col. 65, lines 20-50, col. 68, lines 20-60). Herz also teaches storing and providing ratings (ranking) correlated to a product or service (see at least col. 4, line 48 - col. 5, line 20, col. 6, lines 16-66, col. 7, lines 5-50); statistically analyzing user profiles and retrieving profiles (see at least col. 6, lines 16-60, col. 11, lines 1-45, line 65 - col. 12, line 40, col. 21, lines 5-35, col. 22, lines 15-50) and rules and restrictions are associated with at least one persona (col. 37, line 65 - col. 47, line 60).

Dean et al teaches storing the user profile on a smart card (abstract, col. 2, lines 35-40, 50-55, col. 5, lines 45 - col. 7, line 20, lines 45-65, col. 8, lines 30 - col. 9, line 15). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have stored the user profile information on a smart card as in Dean in the system of Herz because the smart card of Dean would have provided customized information and services as desired by Herz (abstract and summary at least) for users during travel and where the use of a smart card with purchasing records is suggested in Herz (col. 37, lines 45-65).

4. Claims 7-8, 17-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Herz, patent number 6,029,195.

Herz does not clearly teach the use of a template however, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have used a template in displaying search queries and/or results since it is well known in the art to format a display following criteria and would have been adopted for the intended use of displaying, for example, the results of a query based on a ranking of highest to lowest and including the query itself as is common on search web sites.

5. Claims 7-8, 17-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Herz as above in view of Peckover, patent number 6,119,101.

Peckover teaches using templates based on features of products (col. 25, lines 55 - col. 26, line 20) as well as providing information and statistics (at least abstract). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have implemented the templates of Peckover in the system of Herz since the templates of Peckover would have aided in the searching of databases as in Herz for products the user would be most interested in. It also would have been obvious to have presented the information and statistics (for example, ranking) in a template since this would have provided an interface where the results are readily recognized by the user.

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Beauregard et al., patent number 5,974,413 teaches the use of multiple user profiles, one for work, one for home, etc (col. 25, lines 25 - col. 26, line 5, col. 47, lines 15-60, claim 69). Wong et al., patent number 5,890,175 shows several template interfaces in the figures. Dworkin, patent number 4,992,940 teaches a product features template (col. 5, lines 40-65
